Confidence on a break

- Confidence has taken a pause, falling 1.4% last week after two weekly gains. With the exception of current economic conditions, which rose 2.1%, all the sub-indices were negative.
- Current financial conditions fell by 4.7%, its first decline after four consecutive increases, while future financial conditions were down 2.8%.
- Current economic conditions was positive for the third consecutive week, while future economic conditions were down 0.3% after rising 4.5% in the previous reading.
- 'Time to buy a household item' was down 1.3% while the four-week moving average for inflation expectations fell by 0.1ppt to 4.0%.

ANZ-Roy Morgan Consumer Confidence and inflation expectations

Last week (1-2 Jun)	Weekly change, %	Four-week average	Monthly average since 1990	Inflation expectations (four-week ma)
116.9	-1.4%	116.9	113.1	4.0%

Data collected last weekend (Saturday and Sunday), based on around 1,000 face-to-face interviews. Not seasonally adjusted. Further data history on page 6.

ANZ Head of Australian Economics, David Plank, commented:

"Confidence shows signs of consolidation at an above average level after the gains made on the back of the election, talk of interest rate cuts and modest regulatory respite for the housing sector. This week will be quite impactful for the index, as the RBA will be announcing its decision on interest rates beside a plethora of crucial economic data such as the current account, retail sales and GDP. Weekly inflation expectations remained at 3.8% for the second week, meaning the four-week moving average will likely drop below 4% next week."

Confidence down by 1.4% but still well above average
