Consumer confidence keeps edging higher

- Consumer confidence rose 1.0% last week, its fifth straight week of small but consistent gains. Anticipation of yesterday's reopening of greater Sydney, after over 100 days of strict restrictions, likely added to last weekend's positive outlook.
- The subindices registered mixed results. 'Current financial conditions' dropped 1.5%, while 'future financial conditions' gained 0.3%.
- 'Current economic conditions' rose 4.2%, but 'future economic conditions' softened 0.5%.
- 'Time to buy a major household item' improved 2.6%. 'Weekly inflation expectations' dropped 0.1ppt but remained elevated at 4.7%. The four-week moving average rose 0.1ppt to 4.8%.

ANZ-Roy Morgan Consumer Confidence and inflation expectations

Last weekend (9-10 Oct)	Weekly change, %	Four-week average	Monthly average since 1990	Inflation expectations (four-week ma)
105.6	1.0%	104.3	112.5	4.8%

This weekly ANZ-Roy Morgan Australian Consumer Confidence Rating is based on 1,523 interviews conducted online and over the telephone on the weekend. Not seasonally adjusted. Further data history on page 6.

ANZ Head of Australian Economics, David Plank, commented:

Consumer confidence increased by 1.0% nationally as Sydney was poised to come out of its long lockdown. Confidence in the city rose by 2.5%, along with gains in Brisbane (14.4%) and Perth (3.1%). This rise was partially offset by a drop in confidence in Adelaide (-3.4%) and Melbourne (-3.6%). The dampened outlook in Melbourne may reflect rapidly rising COVID case numbers in the city. Given that more than 84% of the adult population in Victoria has been vaccinated at least once, the daily cases should peak soon, which should provide a boost to Melbourne ahead of its reopening. Sentiment in Sydney and NSW could also rise on a successful reopening, though we do note that confidence in Sydney is already a touch above its average for 2021.
