*Methodology change

From 3 January 2022, the interviews for the consumer confidence survey will be conducted throughout the week (Monday to Sunday). Previously they were done at the end of the week (Saturday and Sunday).

Another uptick in consumer confidence

- ‘Weekly inflation expectations’ dropped 0.3ppt to 4.7%, its lowest since mid-December. Its four-week moving average fell 0.1ppt to 4.9%.
- Four out of the five subindices registered gains. ‘Current financial conditions’ dropped 1.8%, while ‘future financial conditions’ gained 0.8%.
- ‘Current economic conditions’ jumped 5.9% after falling 18.3% since mid-December. ‘Future economic conditions’ rose 1.1%.
- ‘Time to buy a major household item’ increased 2.7%.

ANZ Head of Australian Economics, David Plank, commented:

Consumer confidence increased 1.7% last week amid falling COVID cases across most of the country. The rise was mainly driven by a jump in confidence in NSW (6.2%) after three weeks of decline and a 4.3% gain in WA. It was partly offset by declines in Victoria (-2.5%) and Queensland (-0.6%). A more surprising shift was the 0.3ppt fall in inflation expectations (IE) to 4.7%. This came in the same week that the Q4 2021 CPI reported an upward surprise. Retail petrol prices are up 7.0% in January, which would usually elevate inflation expectations. We should not to read too much into a single data point, though, as inflation expectations can be quite volatile from week to week.
