ANZ Senior Economist, Adelaide Timbrell, commented:

ANZ-Roy Morgan Consumer Confidence fell last week despite the RBA leaving the cash rate unchanged, though many subcategories of confidence lifted. There were small gains in ‘current’ and ‘future financial conditions’ and ‘future economic conditions’ but that was more than offset by a sharp decline in the ‘time to buy a major household item’ subindex. Confidence dropped 3.4pts for those paying off their own homes and fell to its lowest level on record for this cohort.
