ANZ Senior Economist, Adelaide Timbrell, commented:

ANZ-Roy Morgan Australian Consumer Confidence increased last week, driven by a rise in confidence about the future of the economy. Future financial confidence also rose, perhaps influenced by the change to Stage 3 tax cuts, which reduce taxes compared to the original cuts for all employees earning under AUD150,000 a year. We expect the RBA to hold rates at 4.35% today, which would help confidence for indebted homeowners, who on average now have higher confidence than renters for the first time since mid-2022. Inflation expectations are down to their lowest four-week average since February 2022.
