Warren Hogan appointed as Chief Economist

ANZ today announced the appointment of Warren Hogan as Chief Economist for Australia.

Mr Hogan joined ANZ in 2005 and has been Acting Chief Economist since Saul Eslake left ANZ in August 2009. He will report to Acting Managing Director Global Markets, Rob O'Callaghan.

In the role, Warren will lead ANZ's Economics and Global Markets Research team which provides economic analysis on the Australian economy, global financial markets, and the economies of major trading partners. Warren will also be responsible for co-ordinating ANZ's regional economic and financial markets research capability across Asia and New Zealand.

Previously, Mr Hogan was Head of Australian Economics and Interest Rate Research at ANZ. Prior to joining ANZ, Mr Hogan was Chief Economist and Head of Interest Rate Product Research at Credit Suisse First Boston and he has worked in senior economic positions with Westpac Banking Corporation and NSW Treasury Corporation.

Mr Hogan is also Secretary of the Australian Business Economists and a member of ANZ Private Bank's Regional Investment Committee.
