ANZ adds eftpos cards to Android Pay

ANZ today announced the launch of Android Pay for eftpos cardholders, which means all its Australian customers can now easily make secure payments on their smartphone.

From today ANZ's eftpos cardholders can access Android Pay to easily make secure purchases on their compatible device wherever contactless payments are accepted.

ANZ continues to lead the banking sector with its mobile payments services by delivering more options for customers than any other major Australian bank.

Commenting on the new mobile payment option, ANZ Managing Director Products Bob Belan said: "ANZ customers now have access to a complete suite of digital payment options regardless of which card or device they use.

"We're committed to maintaining our leadership position in offering customers new, simple and convenient payment experiences so we're pleased to provide our eftpos cardholders the option to now make purchases with their Android mobile device."

To use their eftpos card on an Android device, cardholders simply need to download Android Pay from the Google Play Store and follow the prompts.
